MISS PENSYL TO TEACH AT BOYD'S

Cumberland Twp. Board Fills Vacancy; To Drill Well at Pitzer's School.

Miss Maud Pensyl, Biglerville, was elected to teach Boyd's school for the coming school term at a special meeting of the Cumberland township school board Friday afternoon. The meeting was held at Pitzer's school house with Walter Swisher, president, presiding.

Miss Pensyl's election fills a vacancy that existed in the township teaching staff after the directors had released Miss Marion Bittinger, Plymouth, Massachusetts, from her contract with the directors at her own request. Miss Bittinger taught Boyd's school last year. Miss Pensyl's salary was set at $800 a year, the sum that is to be paid other teachers in the district. The new teacher has taught for 20 years in the schools of Adams county.

The directors fixed Tuesday, September 8, as the date for the opening of the 1936-1937 school term and decided to drill a well at Pitzer's school house before school opens. Previously the school had been supplied with water from Gettysburg water company lines. For years the school had been served on a flat rate, but directors say that rates took a jump upward last year when the water company installed a meter.

AUGUST COURT LISTS 28 CASES FOR TRIAL HERE

Liquor Charges Lead All Others With a Total of Eight.

GRAND JURORS CONVENE FIRST

Twenty-eight criminal cases appear on the trial list for the August quarter sessions of court in Adams county announced today by Clerk of the Courts Roy D. Renner.

The grand jurors will convene Friday morning, August 21, to prepare indictments in readiness for the trial of cases before petit jurors on the opening day of the regular court session, Monday, August 24. On Saturday, August 22, court will be held for the confirmation of accounts. The grand jury will probably conclude its work Saturday.

Although 28 cases are listed for trial, less than that number will be heard by juries for a number of the defendants have already entered pleas of guilty and others may follow the same course before their cases are called for trial. More defendants are charged with violation of the state liquor laws than with any other type of offense. Eight men face charges involving the use of liquor, six of whom face charges of drunken driving. Next most numerous are cases of desertion and non-support with one woman among the list of defendants. She is charged with failing to support her children. There are four serious charges and two of gambling. Only one case of assault and battery, often one of the most numerous charges on the list for a quarter session, appears on the calendar for the August court.

Defendants and Their Charges

The six defendants charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor follow: Vaughn Smith, Ernest Andrews, Charles H. Laughman, Melvin Showers, Lester Goodermuth and John D. Bricker. Ralph Miller, near Gettysburg, is charged with illegal possession of liquor and Irvin Gardner, McKnightstown, is listed for sale of alcoholic beverage without a license.

The following are charged with desertion and non-support: Dale Huff, Merle Baker, Paul J. Trout, Pearl Stahl and Harper Snyder.

Serious or statutory charges are listed against Samuel McDannell, Clair Rife, Glenn Weishaar and Roy Bream.

Others listed and the charges against them follow: Irvin Gardner, gambling; Raymond J. Hipp, gambling; George Molson, robbery; Clair R. Good, Gettysburg, fraudulent conversion; Roy Parker, larceny; Robert N. Renfrew, overloaded truck charge appealed from the decision of a justice of the peace; Earl Deardorff and Allen Kump, larceny; Samuel Aaron, fraudulent check; Edward Walker, assault and battery; Julia Gilbert, surety of the peace, and Lenor Beveridge, keeping a disorderly house.

Following a long-established custom there will be no session of the court of common pleas in August. No trials of cases in that court will be heard until November.

PEACE PLACED ABOVE PROFITS BY ROOSEVELT

Voices Concern Over European Outlook In Chautauqua Speech.

Chautauqua, N. Y., Aug. 15 (AP).—Expressing "deep concern" about tendencies abroad, President Roosevelt Friday night spoke out for world peace but at the same time warned that this country could and would defend itself and "defend our neighborhood."

"I hate war," said the President in a close clipped phrase in a foreign affairs speech urging a building of public opinion for neutrality. "If war should break out again in another continent." Some, he said, would seek to invade neutrality to gain riches.

"If we face the choice of profits or peace," he said, "the nation will answer—must answer—We choose peace."

Voices Apprehension
The Chief Executive spoke from the raised platform of a wooden amphitheatre sunk into a tree-studded hillside near the shores of Lake Chautauqua.

After describing at length the friendly relations of the nations of North and South America, Mr. Roosevelt expressed apprehension over conditions abroad. He spoke particularly of the "bitter experience" of witnessing the violation of both the spirit and letter of international agreements "without regard to the simple principles of honor."

"Our closest neighbors are good neighbors," the President said. "If there are remoter nations that wish us not good but ill, they know that we are strong; they know that we can and will defend ourselves and defend our neighborhood."

He did not define the term "neighborhood," nor did he expand upon what might be implied in his assertion that it would be defended.

Truck Loaded With Girders Catches Fire

A motor truck owned by the Atlas Manufacturing company, Ennisville, was damaged by fire Friday on the Hanover-Littlestown road about two and one-half miles from Hanover.

The truck, loaded with steel girders and traveling toward Littlestown, was ascending the hill approaching the C. N. Myers poultry farm when its driver heard a report which he thought was a tire blow-out. Investigating, the driver found flames enveloping the vicinity of the gasoline tank, and within a few moments the tank exploded.

The blast threw fire to both sides of the highway, igniting grass in nearby fields. The grass fires were extinguished quickly. The driver and other motorists, aided by nearby residents, attempted to extinguish the blaze on the truck by throwing ground upon it. The disabled truck was towed to a clear spot at the roadside to avoid further spreading of the flames. The wood portions of the truck and the tires were burned.

Jail in Astor Case Faced by Kaufman

Judge Calls Matter Closed in Threatening Playwright Who Dodged Subpoena.

Los Angeles, Aug. 15 (AP).—Judge Goodwin J. Knight, of the superior court, termed his patience "practically exhausted" Friday as he stamped the Mary Astor-Dr. Franklin Thorpe child-custody case closed and threatened one of its principals, George S. Kaufman, playwright, with a jail term.

"I'll put this man Kaufman in jail if we ever can find him," said Judge Knight, as Ray Bogie, sheriff's deputy, set out armed with a bench warrant for the home of Moss Hart, Kaufman's friend and also a playwright.

Armed with a search warrant, Bogie went through Hart's house, he said, "from top to bottom," but did not find Kaufman. He said his best information is that Kaufman is in New York.

Kaufman, subpoenaed by Doctor Thorpe's attorneys, failed to appear in court.

A settlement in the custody case was reached Thursday night after two days of wrangling.

Although never before having won a tournament, he was regarded as the best golfer of Gettysburg college and ranked high in the community of Gettysburg. Recently he established a record for the Caledonia golf course of 62, six below par.

ASKS FIREMEN TO CONVENTION

ing the session. F. Lester Smith, of Frederick, past president of the county organization, responded.

H. J. Adams, of Centennial, president of the Adams county volunteer firemen's association gave a brief address to the delegates and extended an invitation to attend the Adams county convention to be held Labor day at Centennial.

The association passed a motion by F. Lester Smith that no fire company in the future shall be admitted to the county association with the intention of it receiving financial aid from the county unless it has a motor driven fire fighting vehicle. The Gracemore fire company, which is not equipped with a motor fire truck, petitioned the association for membership.

After a lengthy discussion as to whether or not to admit the Gracemore company, it was decided in its favor and a motion was passed to admit the company which was organized in 1917 and reorganized in 1935 with a present membership of about 20 firemen.

A committee comprising Dr. A. Atlee Radcliffe, Lewis R. Dertzbaugh, W. Bartgis Storm and William B. Storm, presidents of the four fire companies in Frederick city, and William D. Zimmerman, of Frederick, was appointed by President Charles P. Mort to petition the county commissioners for a road around the women's department at Montevue hospital, near Frederick, to enable fire trucks to combat fires more easily in that division of the institution.

Brunswick was named as the convention town for 1937.

A motion was made by F. Lester Smith that a committee be appointed to go to all small villages in the county and ask the people living there to construct a dam where possible so that when a fire breaks out in the town the responding fire companies will have sufficient water supply. The committee appointed was Jesse I. Renner, Stanley Virts and W. R. Falkenstein, Myersville.

Waltersville was decided upon as the town for the next quarterly meeting of the association in November. Dr. Atlee Radcliffe and F. Lester Smith were appointed on the committee to request permission of the Waltersville fire company to hold the meeting there.

Treasurer A. Y. Boileau in his report stated that the funds in the treasury of the county association at present amount to $111.37.

A report of the memorial service held recently at Baker park, Frederick, under auspices of the county firemen, was given by F. Lester Smith.

President Mort appointed on the nominating committee F. Lester Smith, J. W. Breichner, Dr. A. Atlee Radcliffe, W. R. Falkenstein and E. T. Virts. This committee nominated the new officers. No further nominations were made from the floor of the convention. The secretary cast the ballot for the new officers.

Delegates from 10 of the 12 fire companies in the association were present. Braddock Heights and Waltersville were not represented. The convention was called to order by President Charles P. Mort, Emmitsburg. The opening song, "America," was sung, followed by prayer by William S. Wachtel, chaplain. Minutes of the previous meeting were read by Robert Shipley, Frederick, acting secretary, in the absence of R. L. Smith. All bills were ordered paid.

Musical selections were rendered by Professor William S. Sterninsky, piano, Joseph Kreitz, violin, Fred F. Timmerman, Mandolin, and Roland Fuss, guitar.

Refreshments were served in the yard in the rear of the firemen's home after the session.

tors and consists of the following subjects: "The Story of Money and Credit"; "How Banks Serve Us"; "How Banks Help Business"; "The Federal Reserve System," and "Stocks and Bonds."

For the eighth grade grammar schools a booklet entitled "Banking and Elementary Economics" is distributed to the teachers of each county and consists of the following subjects: "Banks—What Do They Do?"; "Using the Bank"; "Savings at Work"; and "What Good Character Means at the Bank."

"The depression," said Mr. Thomas, "accentuated the lack of understanding of banking and its importance in every community on the part of the general public. Lack of understanding on the part of the public was the contributing factor to the fear which caused most of the runs on banks. In most instances, the fears of the public were unfounded, but a lack of understanding made the existence of such fears possible and logical. It is definitely the responsibility of bank executives today to be painstaking in explaining to their customers what a bank can do and what it cannot do and why. This same responsibility must be required of all employees as well," Mr. Thomas said.

Continuing, the local banker pointed out what Robert V. Fleming, president of the American Bankers' association recently said on the subject:

"For instance, I think it is most important that we have a thorough understanding of the bank laws and regulations which are being issued, and, again, that each and every banker explore fully the possibilities of making bankable such requests for banking services as are presented in unbankable form. By this I mean not only lending services but banking services of all kinds. Where requests for service are presented in unbankable form, I believe the banker should recognize that the public does not have a thorough understanding of banking and if examination discloses that the service applied for cannot be made bankable, then I think it is our distinct duty to explain as clearly as possible to the customer the reason why we cannot render the service. If the service requested happens to be a lending service and the loan applied for is of a capital nature, then I think we must be painstaking in explaining to the applicant that we cannot use our depositors' money to make capital loans, without security, which would make the bank take an equity position or become a partner in the enterprise and the repayment of the loan would be dependent upon the success or failure of the venture. To follow such a policy requires time and effort on our part, but I am sure it will be appreciated by the great majority of the public and a better understanding between bankers and their customers will result."

"Undoubtedly, the place to begin the distribution and dissemination of this information in any community is the public schools. For Adams county alone, there have been 470 of the booklets delivered for distribution. We have been exceptionally fortunate here in the whole-hearted support given this work by Prof. J. Floyd Slaybaugh, county superintendent of schools, and Prof. Lloyd C. Keefeauver and the instructors who recognize the importance of this subject," Mr. Thomas concluded.

Each county in Group 5 has been covered. A key banker in each county has received a quota of these booklets sufficient for complete distribution in his county.

Rio Grande, Brazil, Aug. 15 (AP).—Two hundred passengers and 36 of the crew of the French liner Eubea were taken safely aboard the British freighter Corinaldo Friday after the ships crashed in a fog.

Captain Raoul Daniel and 106 men remained aboard the severely damaged Eubea off Cape Mostardas. Late advice said they were battling a heavy inrush of water which had flooded the engine rooms and incapacitated the ship's power plant. Tugboats put out to her aid groping through a heavy fog, were not expected to arrive before dawn Sunday.

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

A New Novel by Marian Sims

SYNOPSIS: Carol Torrance thought teaching school at Ashboro would be a simple and relatively pleasant springboard for her budding career. The winter has brought her two searing emotional experiences, however, and she is already looking forward eagerly to the close of school. Now Ben Tyler, bachelor and tower of strength to Carol, tells her that Blake Thornton, who runs an advertising agency in Atlanta, is to be guest of honor at a dinner Ben is giving. Perhaps, Carol thinks, she may impress Blake enough for him to give her a job.

Chapter 20 BESIEGING BLAKE

There were eight people at Ben's dinner party: Alice and Tom, Janet Malone, Mildred Harbin and Carol; Blake Thornton and Ben and Andy Tyler. They had cocktails at the Tyler's, then drove to the country club for dinner.

Carol found herself remembering the September dance, and Denis. September was dim and unreal now, and Denis was a man she'd known once. She hadn't heard from him in two months, and the rift had been so inevitable that its existence scarcely mattered. She had made the break herself, in January.

"This has been too good to kill by inches, Denis," she wrote. "So I'm not going to write again. I could make you a pretty, tearful valedictory, but it was too good for that, too. Carry on, my darling."

The letter had evoked a swift, vehement protest, because the prospect of farewell was an artificial stimulus to a fading affair, but she had kept her word. And Denis hadn't written again because he knew she was right.

Blake Thornton was saying: "You don't live here, do you, Miss Torrance?"

She left Denis and came back to the party. No, Meredith, I'm teaching history and French in the high school.

She rather liked Blake Thornton, but he was hardly the type to "wangle" a job from: if he gave you a job it would be because he thought you could do it. He was thirty-three or four, she decided, thin and blond and not very tall, and there were deep lines on either side of his mouth. His eyes were as cold and gray as slate, and his speech was crisper than that of most southern men.

"I didn't think I'd ever met you—or heard of you—and I've been here several times." He smiled, and his eyes warmed a little. "Teaching must call for infinite tact."

"And patience. More of both than I possess, I'm afraid. I'm clearing out after this year; I've tempted Providence long enough."

"That's rather a pity, isn't it?" After all, somebody has to pioneer. She shook her head. "It takes sterner stuff than I'm made of. I've had one narrow escape already; next year I wouldn't be so lucky."

His eyes questioned the nature of her escape, but she ignored the question. He said curiously: "And when you clear out, where do you go then?"

The talk was following the path she would have chosen, but instinct warned her against hurrying it.

"I wish I knew. I'm stopping in Atlanta on the way home, to talk to a friend in personnel work. She may have something to suggest, although I doubt it." She changed the subject quickly, before he should think she was soliciting his help.

"Tell me about Atlanta—how it's making the grade. I haven't spent any time there in five years, and the place has rather grown beyond my recognition."

He frowned. "It's beginning to breathe again—whether from returning consciousness or artificial respiration, God alone knows."

"What do you think?"

"I think it's a little of both."

She saw his eyes considering and weighing her, and she looked calmly back at him. It was a relief to talk to an intelligent man and know that sexual attraction was outside the picture. There was nothing of that in Blake Thornton's quiet look and she was glad; she was still bruised and sore from her encounters with Denis and Mike, and she wanted to forget that side of existence until her spirit healed.

Alice cut into their talk from Blake Thornton's left.

"Blake, darling, you've ignored me all evening. I'm getting violently jealous."

Carol sighed with relief. After a round with Alice, she thought, I'll seem to him like Minerva herself! She turned to Ben, who was grinning inquiringly.

"Making any time?"

"Not yet. I think it's better strategy not to try too hard."

He nodded emphatically. "He's a canny duck; his company is one of the few that hasn't folded up in the last three years."

She dismissed Blake to say: "What are we going to do when we finish eating?"

"Go back to the house, I guess, and have a round of bridge. Any objections?"

"None at all."

She drove to Ben's house with Alice and Tom and Blake Thornton. Alice had evidently counted on riding with Blake, but he helped Carol into the back seat as a matter of course, and Carol smiled in the darkness.

When the car was moving he said casually: "Tell me some more about this job you're looking for."

She held her breath, and tried to sound equally casual. "I can't, until I find it. I'll probably end up—if I land at all—selling hardware in a basement."

They were silent for a time, and then Thornton said curiously: "Why Atlanta, Miss Torrance?" and there was an overtone of weariness in his voice.

The question jerked her back. Evidently his mind had been following the path of their talk, which was, perhaps, an encouraging sign.

"I'm—not quite sure." She laughed parenthetically. "I wish you would not call me Miss Torrance. Nobody does, except pupils and faculty."

"Thanks; I won't."

She went back to his question: "Why not Atlanta? What would you suggest—Ashboro or Meredith?"

"Oh, no! But cities are so diabolically feverish. When I retire (funny how we all cherish the illusion of being rich enough some day to retire, isn't it?) I'm going to live on a farm and raise chickens and vegetables."

"Who wouldn't?" She said it wistfully. "But you'd have to own the farm. You wouldn't go and hire yourself out as a farm hand."

They played indifferent bridge for over an hour, until Tom said: "Oh, heck, let's play black jack. Ten cent limit."

The black jack game broke up at midnight, and Ben and Blake Thornton drove Carol and Janet home. At Mrs. O'Connor's Blake held out his hand.

"Good luck, Carol." He hesitated, then added carelessly: "If you come to town, give me a ring. I might have an idea between now and then."

She gave him her hand. "Thanks. I may do it. Ben, it was a grand party. Night, Janet."

May, and a presage of real summer. The final lap of school seemed interminable to Carol. Examinations occupied the last week, and substituted grinding desk work for the uphill battle of injecting knowledge. The brighter students were exempt and thus the load was lightened, but reports filled in the crevices of leisure.

Mr. Hudson spoke to Carol about returning, and the triumph in his eyes was for his own vindication as well as hers.

"The Board have asked me to tell you, Miss Torrance, that they hope you'll re-apply."

She smiled at him. "I'm awfully glad—for your sake more than for my own. I hated having you tarred with the same brush."

"Oh, pshaw . . ." he waved the tribute gallantly aside. "Then you will do it?"

"I'm afraid not. We wouldn't be as lucky next time, and there'd be sure to be a next time. I've got a positive genius for opening my mouth and putting my foot in it."

He argued it with her, but in the end he had to give in.

"I'm sorry. The hope of education is in young women like you."

"I'm sorry too. But I'm just selfish enough to have an eye on my own future."

Ellen too had declined to commit herself at present. "I'm not quite sure yet," she confessed to Carol. "But I think I've got other plans for next year."

Carol smiled affectionately. "It wouldn't take a Philo Vance to guess what they are, would it?"

Ellen's answering smile was glowing and self-conscious. "Maybe not. But I haven't quite made up my mind . . ."

Carol snorted disdainfully. "Oh, no? Well, the best of everything to you, darling, and I know you'll have it."

What wouldn't I give, she thought desperately, for a destiny like that. Or for the temperament to fulfill it?

Ellen would take Ashboro to her heart because it held Mack Hodgins. And the turbid, tumultuous river of existence would rush past, while Ellen and her family lived serene and reasonably secure upon the higher bank.

Monday, Carol takes the big plunge—a little fearfully.

RUSSIAN ARCTIC FLYERS WAIT IN NOME, ALASKA

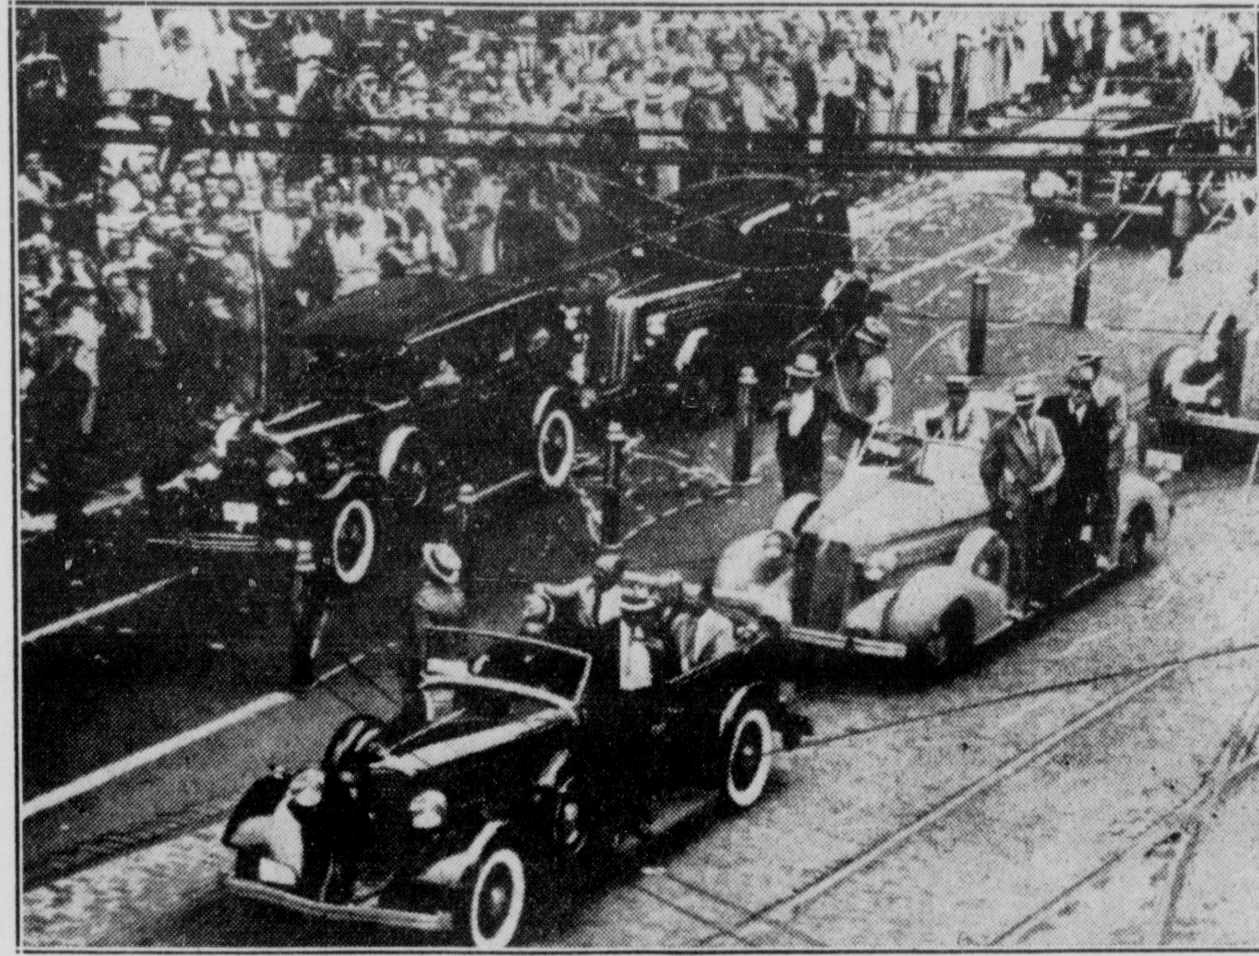

Nome, Alaska, Aug. 15 (AP).—Sigmund Levanovsky and Victor Levanovsky, Russian flyers en route from California to Moscow, slept in their plane Friday while awaiting favorable weather reports before soaring over the Arctic.

Their next scheduled flight is to Uelen, near the Eastern tip of East Cape, Siberia.

Their monoplane, equipped with emergency rations, two-way radio, radio compass, life belts and a collapsible boat, was pulled off a sand bar on which it had wedged itself on alighting from Fairbanks.

The Louis-Schmeling fight pictures are said to have grossed over $500,000 so far.

Washington Eight Rallies To Win Olympic Crown

By ALAN GOULD

Associated Press Sports Editor

Grunau, Germany, Aug. 15.—Paced magnificently by the curly-haired invalid, Don Hume, who roared the last 200 meters on the verge of collapse, Washington's Huskies saved eight-oared Olympic supremacy for the United States under rain-soaked but highly dramatic circumstances Friday.

Trailing by a length with only 600 meters to go, the unbeaten American collegians came from behind in a thrilling drive which carried them across the finish line scarcely a quarter-length—exactly six-tenths of a second—in front of the heavyweight Italians.

Germany's hard-fighting crew was a close third in a finish in which only one second separated the first three shells over the hardest kind of a battle over the 2,000 meters course through a driving rain and against a severe head wind.

The British and Hungarians, the European favorites, were beaten off finishing fourth and fifth, while the Swiss brought up the rear in a race that saw the Americans barely outlast the battling blue shirts from Livorno, including three veterans of the crew that gave the University of California such a bad scare at Los Angeles four years ago.

Swimmers Win 3rd Crown Berlin, Aug. 15 (AP).—America's swimmers virtually wrapped up the men's Olympic crown Friday by winning their third championship and taking an ironclad option on the fourth.

Barring some unexpected development, it seemed unlikely that Japan, their closest rival, could overtake them in the three remaining events to be decided today—200-meter breaststroke, 1,500-meter free style and the 10-meter platform dive.

Pouring rain which left spectators drenched and pelted in his face failed to disturb Adolf Kiefer, of Chicago, as he swept to a record-smashing victory in the 10-meter backstroke over his teammate, Al Vande Weeghe, of Paterson, New Jersey, and Masaji Kiyokawa, of Japan.

Marshall Wayne, of Miami, practically clinched the platform diving title when he led at the half-way stage with his optional dives coming up today. The tall Floridian's only rival is the German Erhard Weiss, who was in second place, 56-100 of a point behind. The only laurels that escaped the grasping hands from across the Atlantic went to Holland for a record-cracking triumph in the women's, 400-meter relay, free-style championship. Even with Katherine Rawls, of Miami, drafted at the last minute and leading off, the American girls could do no better than third behind Germany.

For no one pays heed to his whining today.

He's a spiritless creature love labored to spoil.

Too timid to battle; too careless to toil.

For his parents forgot, as they ran at his cry,

Just how helpless he'd be should they happen to die.

THE BOOK AGENT

He comes with flattery on his tongue,

A cane upon his arm, A broadcloth coat that's trimly hung,

A practiced smile to charm, Like some great nation's diplomat

At first he acts and looks But once he's settled down to chat

I find he's selling books.

He mentions names of famous men

As though he knew them all. I wonder just how oft again

For speech like that I'll fall. But he is such a pleasant man

I lend a willing ear And wait as meekly as I can

Until the books appear.

Soon from his pockets, cavern deep

Come bindings red and blue, All treasures rare at prices cheap

He pleads with me to view. "Pay any time," he says to me, indisposed at the same time Miss Hewitt was affected.

Miss Hewitt testified Doctor Boyd and his codefendant, Dr. Tilton E. Tillman, examined her but did not take her pulse count or temperature, did not touch her and prescribed no medicine.

Nevertheless, she said, a nurse examined her and she was taken to a hospital, ostensibly for an appendectomy.

The operation was performed in August, 1934, while Miss Hewitt still was a minor. After reaching her majority she filed a $500,000 suit against her mother, Mrs. Maryon Cooper Hewitt; the two physicians and a women psychiatrist. She charged her mother engineered a plot to gain control of her inheritance, estimated as high as $10,000,000.

IOWAN TAKES AX IN HAND TO AWAKEN PHONE LINE

Wapello, Iowa, Aug. 15 (AP).—Pearl Strawhacker, 45, of Oakville, Iowa, rang the telephone operator without getting an answer—And he got mad.

Rustling up his ax he chopped down the telephone pole in front of his house, accompanying each chop with a well-chosen salty remark, neighbors told Peace Justice William Hiller.

Justice Hiller sentenced him to thirty days in jail for using violent language—and destroying property.

173 Americans Put 'On Own' in Madrid

15 Women Heed Embassy Warning And Leave Spain; Others To Stay.

Madrid, Aug. 15 (AP).—More than 170 Americans apparently had decided Friday to stay in Spain's capital city and weather the revolution.

Out of 188 United States citizens known to be in the city, only 15—all of them women—had decided to heed a warning by the American embassy and leave for the seacoast to be embarked on a ship which would take them out of range of gun and shell fire.

The 65 Americans still in the embassy, where they took refuge with dozens of others soon after the fascist rebels started their military campaign to take over the socialist government, were served notice that the embassy no longer felt called upon to give them asylum.

The embassy itself will remain open.

A recommendation that Americans wanting to leave the city do so immediately or be prepared to remain on their own responsibility was issued by American diplomatic officials.

The embassy has received instructions from Washington to evacuate all Americans unless they are no longer planning to seek refuge in the embassy building. The state department has authorized the closing of the building if the situation warrants.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

THE ELOQUENCE OF TOUCH

WE RARELY, if ever, think of silence as a language, and yet it is one of the most eloquent of languages at times. When I visited the Grand Canyon of Arizona, I stood breathless before it. I knew no words adequate to its description, its weird, mysterious spell of beauty talking to me, rather than I talking about it, or even being able to form words to meet its description.

The eloquence of touch is similar. When sorrow comes, or dire discouragement grips the heart and clouds the brain, what so eloquent as the touch of a friend's fingers to yours in an understanding grip? How eloquent is the touch of a mother's fingers that smooth a brow hot with fever!

No one has ever figured out the language of a dog's bark—yet it must be a definite language to him, for it answers to so much of a man's understanding of a dog that he loves. But here again comes in the language of touch. How that grand, dumb animal loves to be fondled and petted! An eloquence of understanding comes to him in that touch that passeth all words.

The touch of the wind to one's cheeks on a hot day, or the warm rays of the sun has its own eloquence that vibrates through one's entire being. The touch of soft velvet to one's fingers, or of fine fur, or of silk, each though material, stirs eloquence of feeling within us.

The story is told in the New Testament of how a woman, ill of body, came to Jesus, with the faith in her heart that could she but touch the hem of his garment she would be healed. And the story is that she was healed by that touch—that silent touch.

There is something eloquent that stirs me as I touch a book that I love—as though I touched the mind and understanding of the one who wrote it. I heard a great minister once say from his pulpit that when he bought a treasured volume, he would carry it in his pockets and fondle it with loving fingers, because of the joy that he knew it contained.

I stroked the green needles of a glorious red pine today and that touch thrilled me. I wish I could put into words the eloquence of that touch!

Asks $2,000 Due to Illness After Eating 5c Piece of Pie

Frances Howell Silverman Files Bill of Particulars in Damage Suits Instigated Against Confectionery Store.

Baltimore, Aug. 15. — A 2 a. m. half preliminaries, an answer was filed in the Baltimore city court to the confectionery's demand for a bill of particulars.

This is the most recent development in the case, and the end, apparently, is not yet. The paper filed Friday answered eight specific requests for information. A ninth went unanswered. The answers were as follows:

First—The manufacture of the pie is a matter peculiarly within the knowledge of the defendants, and not of the plaintiff.

Second—The price of said pie was five cents (5c).

Third—The specifications and dimensions of said pie are well known to the defendants, same was sold in a specifically designed oblong pasteboard container, the top of which consisted of cellophane and was sold in said original package by the defendants.

Purchased About 2 a. m.

Fourth—The pie was purchased about 2 a. m.

Fifth and Ninth—The portion of said pie was eaten by the plaintiff at supper, at her residence at Nutwell, Maryland, about 2 o'clock on the same day.

Sixth—The filling in said pie was not fresh, but had become spoiled.

Seventh—The plaintiff was taken ill within (blank) hours after eating said portion of said pie.

Jury Will Try Case

The unanswered question dealt with damages and injuries other than an attack of ptomaine poisoning which the original suit set forth followed the midnight supper.

When the principle and attorneys have satisfied themselves on the dimensions of a five-cent piece of pie and other important details, the case will be scheduled to go to trial before a jury.

FISHERMAN'S LUCK

“THE white flags mark the sailing course . . . and those two little poles over there? They mean good fishing.

“Probably somebody fished and fished all over the lake with no luck at all until he hit that spot. Maybe he got several good strikes about there. Must have calculated in his mind just where the spot was and, next time he came out, brought those poles with him and drove down, so he'd have something to tie his boat to.”

Advertisements mean to an experienced shopper exactly what those two poles mean to an experienced fisherman—“good fishing.” Advertisements are markers of the best buys—they save “fishing all over the lake.”

Hollywood—Off-stage romance in Hollywood is a year-around phenomenon, requiring no vernal equinox to stir up thoughts of love.

Here where the stage is broader by far than those barn-like buildings equipped with sound devices and cameras, the natural urge is fostered by propinquity, press agency and gossip.

One actress the other day picked up the morning paper and turned to the gossip column eagerly. "I've got to see who my sweetheart is today—and meet him," she said flippancy.

A comparatively rare culmination to filmland romance occurred the other day when Allen Jones and Irene Hervey were married. Anywhere else marriage can be fairly reliably expected as the sequel to romance, but in Hollywood young love frequently lasts only as long as the gossip is interested.

Of course young love, here as everywhere else, is not a thing to catalog and dismiss as either "the

Woman Ends Life
In 3-Story Leap
At Westminster

Westminster, Aug. 15 (AP)—Miss Grace Lippy, 30-year-old shoe company employee, ended a rendezvous with a suitor Friday, Deputy Sheriff Walter Shipley said, by plunging to death from her third floor apartment.

Deputy Shipley said John Hyde, employee of a stone quarry near New Windsor, told him Miss Lippy hit him with a hatchet, tried to hang herself, cut her throat, crawled out on a fire escape and dropped 40 feet to the ground.

Coroner Sherman E. Flanagan arranged an immediate inquest. Shipley said Hyde, whom he described as a man with whom Miss Lippy "kept company," summoned him and told him what had happened.

Hyde was taken to a Baltimore hospital with a fractured skull.

Hyde told officers he went to her apartment at her request. She asked him to open a window, and as he did so, she hit him on the head with a hatchet.

Hyde told Shipley he was knocked unconscious and when he came to he saw the woman hanging in a doorway. He cut her down and went for help. He told the officers he returned to find Miss Lippy had cut her throat. Shipley said Hyde told him he ran out into a hallway to call an officer. Meanwhile, he said, Miss Lippy crawled out a fire escape and dropped to the ground. She died in a few minutes.

"Prescriptions
CAREFULLY COMPOUNDED"

Remember when every village druggist used to run that phrase in his "standing ad" in the local paper.

Yes, it's a bit old fashioned in these bustling days. But it aptly describes our service. We're proud to direct attention to our Prescription Department. For ours is primarily a Drug Store. We invite your prescription business and assure you of fair prices, prompt, exact service and fresh, potent drugs.

Everybody Drinks Lots of Royale Dairy Milk
WHY DON'T YOU?

Facts Worth Remembering:

Not all milk is good milk. It is when it leaves the cow but a moment afterwards germs have already collected. Milk to be pure and rich must be watched from the moment it is given until it reaches the customer. It must be kept clean from dirt and should be pasteurized.

When you drink our milk you give your stomach a treat. It is safe and wholesome. Give it to your family—it is their best food. Don't risk the health of your entire family by buying doubtful milk. Be sure and order your dairy products from the Royale Dairy.

Moscow, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Soviet government, charging its one-time war minister and revolutionary zealot, Leon Trotsky, sought to foster a rebellion from his Norway exile, Friday jailed sixteen of his asserted colleagues.

Direct responsibility for the assassination of Sergei Mironovich Kiroff, colleague of Dictator Joseph Stalin, was attributed to Trotsky, Leon Kamenoff and Gregory Zinovieff. Kiroff was slain in 1934.

The three, most powerful enemies of Dictator Stalin in his fight for power after the death of Nikolai Lenin, were charged with planning a campaign of terror and attacks upon leaders of the Soviet regime.

The government asserted that under "the direct direction of Trotsky and the leadership of the so-called united centers, the Trotsky-Zinovieff gang prepared a number of terrorist actions against communist leaders.

DIRTY WATER:

AS LONG as water mains are made of iron, a certain amount of rust will gather in the lines. Ordinarily this rust will lie quietly in the pipe and cause no trouble. But when we have to operate a valve or a heavy flow occurs, the rust comes to your house and you call us.

We make every effort to keep this trouble to a minimum but "things will happen." When it happens to you, we ask that you be patient and rest assured that we're doing all that we can to remedy things.
